

Irish Computer on the web

Ireland`s First Computer Magazine

- Home
- Subscribe
- Advertise
- Media pack
- About us
- Meet the team

Ireland's First Computer
Magazine

Pictured at the announcement were Billy Huggard Managing Director CPG left with Tom Flynn CEO SID.

CPG and SID win European project

CPG (www.cpg.ie), Publishers of Irish Computer and event management specialist in Ireland, has won a market validation project from the European Commission. The project Ambient-eLearning, is focused on supporting ICT professionals (e.g. Network managers, System Administrators) who have a desire to increase their professional knowledge but or no time to attend formal courses or training seminars. Supported in Ireland by Software Information Designs Limited (www.sid2u.com), the project provides a practical elearning service that is based on stable and mature technology. The service offers easy to use, modal, personalised and context-sensitive access to learning at work, at home, at a training institution or on the move. The project will demonstrate its services in four European regions (Germany, Greece, Italy, and Ireland) and therefore preparing the ground for successful market deployment. The project commences in September and runs for eight months. Commenting on the project Billy Huggard Publisher of Irish Computer said "This is an ideal fit for the magazine as we aim to deliver content on an ongoing basis that is timely and helps save people valuable time in sourcing accurate information relevant to their job function and career"

Copyright 2004, CPG Ltd. While every effort has been made to verify that information on this site is correct, the publishers accept no responsibility for errors or omissions.